Sisters Sophia Kim and Jane Moon nail the city's casual-chic vibe with their seven-month-old line, Isabel Lu. "L.A.'s relaxed lifestyle informs our designs," says the 36-year-old Moon. Using distinctly dressy fabrics, such as silk and chiffon, and embellishments like embroidery and well-placed ruffles, the L.A. natives manage to keep comfort polished with their breezy metallic-trim tunics, dip-dyed gauze dresses, and loose-fitting cropped pants. "It's a delicate balance, but in the end women really want easy yet elegant clothes," says Kim, 34, who, with her sister, grew up apprenticing for their parents' garment company, where they learned about textiles, cutting, sewing, design, and production. Named for Moon's seven-year-old daughter, Isabel, and their father's nickname, Lu, the label, says Moon, "symbolizes where we came from and where we are going." Prices range from $40 to $180. Available at Satine (8117 W. Third St., 323-655-2142); for more information, go to isabellu.com.
